United States Senator.

Upon the approaching session of our State Legislature, devolves the important work of electing a United States Senator for six years from the 4th of March next. That Mr. Edmunds will be elected there is no doubt; in fact there seems to be no opposition to him that is worth mentioning. He has served his State and country faithfully and ably, and there are few members of the Senate whose opinions are sought after more than his. Though comparatively a young man, he has attained a position during his short Senatorial experience which older members may well envy. The following excellent article concerning Mr. Edmunds we copy from the Montpelier Freeman of this week:

Mr. Edmunds was appointed in the Spring of 1861, on the death of Senator Poote, a Senator during the remaining recess of the Legislature of 1861 when the Legislature assembled he was chosen without opposition for Mr. Poote's unexpired term. He entered at once upon active work in his new position, and long ago earned the same reputation as a legislator at Washington which he acquired here. He is a quick and accurate thinker, and a man who works while there is any work to do, and these habits put him at once into the rank in the Senate, and at first led some of the older members to criticize him as too officious for a new member. When they found, however, that he was not pushing himself into notice but simply pushing the public business, that it was his habit to investigate, weigh and judge every measure before the Senate, before acting or speaking upon it; and that he shed light instead of darkness upon every question he touched; they were soon quite ready to let him pull as strong an oar as any one. A good evidence of his present position is found in the fact that he presented in the Republican caucus, at the recent assembling of Congress, the resolution which was adopted after considerable opposition by that body, and afterward by the solid vote of the Republicans in both Houses, providing for an adjournment until October 15th, and then till Nov. 10th. His clear apprehension of what the crisis demanded, and his promptitude in preparing and presenting the fruit of his thought, made him in that, as they make him in whatever he does, a natural leader; and he is this, as it always seemed to us, without ostentation, and because he gets ready for work before most men do, and seizes at once upon practical methods of procedure.

We have no time and there is no need to go over Mr. Edmunds's whole course in the Senate. He has been criticised, as every man will be who acts promptly and energetically upon his own judgment, and he finds himself sometimes with the minority, as well as often with the majority of Senate. He has shown himself, however, on all political questions, to be fully in accord with the advanced Republicanism of the people of Vermont, his place being clearly among the Radical Republicans of the Senate and of the country. In our House of Representatives, and in our State Senate he was one of the most useful members; and we can but think that there is now in the United States Senate no man who has greater capacity and greater inclination for legislative work, who has better disciplined and more active intellect, who has greater zeal or energy in the public service, who is more familiar with parliamentary law or the methods of legislation, who is more thoroughly and consistently Republican in his principles, or who gives greater promise of usefulness as a Senator than Mr. Edmunds. The State will honor itself, as well as honor a worthy public servant, in him a hearty re-election.

ARRIVAL OF GEN. MCCLELLAN.—Gen. McClellan, who has been travelling in Europe for the past three or four years arrived in New York by the Cunard steamer Cuba, on Tuesday. Tomorrow, the "McClellan Legion" will pay their respects to their old Chief. They will march to his headquarters and tender him a serenade. They will be dressed in their uniforms, consisting of blue blouse, pantaloons, the white McClellan cap, and white belts. The procession, it is said, will number 4,000, all bearing torches.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.—The New York Sun's Washington correspondent says, it is stated by Treasury Department officials that the coming statement of the debt for the month of September, will show a decrease, instead of an increase. Only about one telegraphed quarter millions have been paid three-interest on the Ten-forty bonds and the regular expenditures of the Government have not been unusually large. It is estimated that the Internal Revenue receipts will be about $9,000,000, and the customs have averaged about $450,000 a day.

MAINE ELECTION.—Returns from all the cities and towns of Maine—nearly all of them official, and furnished to the Associated Press by the Secretary of State's office—exhibit the following result: Chamberlain, 75,927; Pillsbury, 55,455. Aggregate vote, 131,382. Chamberlain's majority, 20,472. It is the opinion at the Secretary's office that, with the correction of the returns by the official report, and the addition of the few plantations not yet counted, the majority for Chamberlain will be increased from two to three hundred beyond the above figures.

THE ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE.—The Salem, (Ill.) Gazette relates an interesting incident which grew out of the financial crisis of 1857. A wealthy retired merchant was then living at Lyons, N. Y., with his wife and only daughter, who was young, handsome and accomplished. The young lady was engaged to a talented young lawyer. The merchant's property was swept away in the general wreck, and he was obliged to sell his fine mansion, plate, horses and carriages, and remove to New York, where he obtained a clerkship on a small salary, which proved insufficient to support his family. The daughter procured a situation as seamstress. At the end of a year she heard of the marriage of her affianced, and left home, father and mother. Seven years later her father caught a glimpse of her, in company with her former lover, on a train just leaving the Hudson river depot. The father had partially restored his fortune, and employed a detective to seek her out, and he was three years in working up the case. The man to whom she was to have been married, lost his wife shortly after he was married, and either from sorrow for her loss or remorse of having betrayed the confidence of his early love, he became dissipated, and, losing his practice, step by step, descended to the occupation of a comic singer in a low dance house, where he met the woman whose life he had blasted. They were married, and endeavored to reform. They were married to Montreal, where he seemed to have accumulated some money, as the next day was heard of the man who was accounting for a farm at Shilburg. As that point trace of them was lost, and the detective is still in search of them.
